Juror

Andrea Ferrigno

"I love when works of art have an element of surprise, when something is discovered through the process of creating, and that translates to the viewer. The most successful works have an element of this, while demonstrating dedication of craft paired with visual acuity. I will be looking for works that embark with rigor and risk; that have culturally and historically critical attributes."

Andrea Ferrigno is an artist living and working in Galesburg, Il. She is a faculty member in the Department of Art and Art History at Knox College. Ferrigno received her MFA from the University of Iowa and her BFA from Kansas City Art Institute. Her work has been shown nationally and internationally. Recent works have been shown at The Painting Center and Manhattan Graphics in New York City.
